The Last Great Climb (special edit)
Best Film — Climbing—Sponsored by the Alpine Club of Canada
(2013, UK, 26 min)
Filmmaker: Alastair Lee
Website: www.thelastgreatclimb.com
Classification: General, no advisory
Focus: rockclimbing, expedition

Are rock stars Leo Houlding, Sean “Stanley” Leary, and Jason Pickles up to their old tricks again? Maybe so, but they've brought along a few new friends and hopes of a bold new line on a remote spire in Queen Maud Land, Antarctica. They're going big again – the majestic unclimbed Ulvetanna Peak is their goal this time. But they're in the middle of nowhere, miserably cold, a bit delirious. Hopefully it's nothing a little adrenaline can't cure.

The Last Ice Merchant – El Ultimo Hielero

(2013, USA, 24 min)
Filmmakers: Josh Lowell, Alex Lowther, Peter Mortimer, Nick Rosen
Website: www.reelrocktour.com
Classification: Parental Guidance; coarse language
Focus: rockclimbing, female climbers

The UK climbing scene is known for its strict traditional ethic, yielding super sketchy, dangerous routes, and a competitive machismo. It's the last place you'd expect to find a nice little blond girl putting all the lads to shame, but Hazel Findlay is doing just that. The first woman to climb the British grade of E9, Hazel is a connoisseur of loose rock, dodgy gear, and big runouts.

Split of a Second
(2012, Sweden, 8 min)
Filmmakers: Björn Fävremark and John Boisen
Website: www.facebook.com/espen.fadnes
Classification: General, no advisory
Focus: wingsuit flying

99.9% of time is spent in preparation for living a few moments of joy. The other .1% is to only be here now, and step off that cliff!

Streams of Consequence
(2013, USA, 17 min)
Filmmaker: James Q Martin
Website: www.rioslibres.com
Classification: General, violence
Focus: Environmental
One of the last remaining wilderness areas in the world is threatened as plans for mega-dams on the rivers of Chilean Patagonia are solidified. What is the outcome for these people and their struggle to keep their lands dam-free?

Sufferfest
(2013, USA, 18 mins)
Filmmaker: Cedar Wright
Website: www.cedarwright.com
Classification: General, no advisory
Focus: Climbing, biking, adventure

Alex Honnold and Cedar Wright embark on a wholly human-powered adventure to link all of California's 14,000 foot peaks. Utterly new to biking, the quirky yet endearing duo push themselves to their absolute limits in pursuit of success.

Valhalla (special edit)
(2013, USA, 3 min)
Filmmakers: Ben Sturgulewski, Nick Waggoner, Michaal Brown, Zac Ramras
(Sweetgrass Productions)
Website: www.sweetgrass-productions.com
Classification: Parental Guidance, nudity
Focus: skiing, snowboarding

From naked chairlift riding to cliff airs wearing nothing more than an avalanche beacon and a smile, Valhalla's naked snow segment sparks laughter from skiers and non-skiers alike.
